Victim's Arm Nearly Torn Off in Struggle Between Comrades and Men.

Guseppi Glammanco, twenty-three, living at No. 1226 Eighth avenue, Williamsburg: Giuseppi Certinel, twenty-two, of No. 26 Stanton street, ambattan, and Max Lavin, forty, hauffour and automobile owner, of No. 347 Bradford street, East New York, were arraigned to-day before Magistrate Steers in the Gates Ave-ane Police Court, Wallamsburg, charged with kidnapping. All three were held for examination Thursday in ball of $1,500.

The men, with three others, are deried fith trying to kidnep Rose-ine Vida, a Sicilian, nineteen years old, as she was leaving the factory of Horowits & Sons, No. 142 Stock-holm street, Williamsburg, at 6 o'clock last night. Only the plucky fight put up by the girl's companwas an unwelcome suitor. She told hausted, was being forced into the him his attentions were objectionable. The men ran. Glammanco and Certinel jumped into the auto and shouted to the chauffeur to hurry. Lavin, it is said, refused to move and the men were placed under arrest.

TIP; LOSE BURGLARS

Bum" Tries in Vain to Lead Officers to Barn in Which Robbers

The police of the West Twentieth street station have more confidence in Bum, their station pet, since he tried vainly to lead them to a band of burclars early to-day in the rear of No.

Close Senate Vote in Nevada. RENO, Nev., Nov. 10 .- With the vote

ing from a fire-escape had set off a burglar alarm. The patrol agency sent half a dozen special officers and Bum led a squad from the West Twentieth street station. Bum caught the scent at the fire-escape and started toward a stable about the time the policemen heard a crash on the tweifth story balcony. The police ignored Bum and went up the escape until they found that the "lookout" had dropped a bottle from the roof to warn nis companions, and that two or more had run down the escape into the stable, while others went to the roof and escaped through another building. Part of the gang was in the stable when Bum tried to lead the police there, but got away while the noise aloft was being investigated.
